Those who have journeyed through Mon-4 ana and Idaho, via the Northern Pacific, may have met an odd character who goes by the name of "Death on the Trail," says the return same, $75.

To San Francisco, going via Ogden and Globe-Democrat. His real name is, I believe, Spafford, but call him what you will be is a queer genius and well repays study, on account of his rich and varied store of reminiscences and tales of the time when that country was really "wild." He has been in the habit for years of going there in the fall and winter to kill and capture bear, deer, caribou, panther, lynxes, wild-cats—anything which would prove an attraction

o' the head, 'n' the front sight o' the gun, which was just over my wrist of the hand I'd kept hold with, dug into the cords so sharp that it numbed'em, 'n' I dropped the rifle. The b'ar dropped too, like he was comin' fer me, so I turned 'n' run, but the comin' fer me, so I turned 'n' run, but the two dead dogs was in my road, 'n' I was watchin' the b'ar, an' I tripped on the dogs an' down I went—right down the hill, head first I mean. I shid along 'bout fifteen feet, 'n' landed in a phe o' brush, clost to a little game trail. I heard a big noise behind me: an' guessed the b'ar was after me, 'n' off I started up the trail as hard as I could pelt. I run 'bout a hundred yards, 'n' there the trail disappeared—at least it went right up the side o' the gulch, whar nothin' but a mountain sheep could go.

"Well, I turned round, and thar was a wavin' in the bush back whar the b'ar was. I looked down, but it was straight down bout twenty-five feet; I knew I had ter act quick, but couldn't think o' nothin' t' do; and that cam th' b'ar, Well, ye know how slim I be, an' th' idee struck me that p'raps y aimin' like I was goin' to pas outside, an' then throwing my self in suddently, slide a-past him. So a him I went, but he jest r'ared up an' opene his arms for me, in then I that maybe could jump clean over him. Well, jumped, but my head struck some little cedars, 'n' i guess it kinder turned me end ways. All i member is that my feet struck whys. All I member is that my feet struck th' b'ar 'n' my head struck th' ground, 'n' that's all. I cum to about a hour after, 'n' th' other dog was lickin' my face 'n' cryin', 'n' th' b'r wasn't nowhere 't I could see. I managed to git back whar th' rifle lay, 'n' whar th' dead dog was, 'n' then I started fer camp. I'd got 'bout half way, when I membered I didn't have nothin' to eat yit; so I went down to the little creek and folleyed it up to see 'f I couldn't scare up a chicken. I to see 'f l couldn't scare up a chicken, wasn't 'fraid o' th' b'ar, neither, now't had megun. I pushed along tell I got 'most under the place whar th' b'ar come so near gettin' ne without seein' anything; and thar, in th' bottom of that creek. with th' water flowin' roun' him, was that b'ar-dead. Yes, sir, dead. My jump h d knocked him clean oil his pegs, 'n' he'd jest nat'rally fell down on th' rocks 'n' broke his neck."

Herculean Strength

Continually on the strain, or overtaxed at intervals, is far less desirable than ordinary vigor perpetuated by rational diet and exercise, and abstention from excess. Professional pugliists and athletes rarely attain old age. As ordinary vigor may be retained by a wise regard for sanitary living, and for the protection against disease which timely and judicious medication affords, so also it may be lost through prolonged sedentary labor, uninterrupted mental strain, and foolish eating and drinking, the chief and most immediate sequence of all four being dyspepsia. For this condition thus, or in any way induced, and for its offspring, a failure of muscular and nerve power, Hostetters Stomach Bitters is the primest and most genial of remedies. Not only indigestion, but loss of flesh, appetite and sleep are remedied by it. Incipient malaria and rheumatism are banished, and kidney, bowel and liver complaint removed by it. bowel and liver complaint removed by it.
